Eddie the Eagle to carry torch

VANCOUVER 2010 Games

OLYMPICS Eddie the Eagle is flying back to Canada.

Michael Edwards, the inexperienced and unorthodox ski jumper from England who became a fan favourite during the 1988 Calgary Winter Olympics and finished last in both his events, will carry the flame during the torch relay for the Vancouver Games.

He had been ski jumping for just two years when he became the first British man to compete in the sport at the Olympics, and crowds of fans chanting his name became an iconic image of the Calgary Games.

Edwards is scheduled to carry the torch in Winnipeg in January.

Shot shortage coming

Disruption in next few weeks temporary: AHS official

Flu Outbreak

KRISTA SYLVESTER
krista.sylvester@metronews.ca

Impatience and frustration, repeated fire alarms and mass evacuations at the Olympic Oval greet hundreds of Calgarians waiting in line for the H1N1 vaccine, according to an Oval employee.

And he is worried those scenarios may only worsen as Alberta Health Services deputy medical officer Dr. Judy MacDonald confirmed yesterday there will be a temporary interruption of vaccinations due to a vaccine shortage in the coming weeks.

"We know that beginning next week the vaccine supply will slow down and taper off," MacDonald explained.

MacDonald said the reason for the disruption stems from the manufacturer as it starts to roll out the doses that are suitable for pregnant women, and then back to the vaccine for the general population.

"What this means is things will slow down and we'll keep providing the vaccine as long as we've got it ... If we don't have more, we'll take a breather and wait for it to come to us again."

When asked whether the impending shortage will cause longer lineups and more chaos at existing clinics, MacDonald said it's a possibility.

"It's hard to speculate on that, human nature being what it is," she said.

Despite the possible rush of vaccine seekers, there are no more planned clinics in the works — just the existing five, seven days a week, she added.

Richard George said he is worried about news of a temporary shortage of vaccine but can't afford to miss work to stand in line.

"I thought I could go next week when it winds down, but now I'm worried it will get worse and then (the vaccine will) run out before we can get there," he said.

Soldier's widow speaks

AFGHANISTAN The widow of the latest Canadian soldier to die in Kandahar put aside her grief for a few minutes to pay tribute to her husband and share his concern that Canadians are losing support for the mission in Afghanistan.

Lt. Justin Boyes, 26, who grew up in Saskatoon, was killed Wednesday in an explosion while leading a foot patrol only 10 days into his second tour of duty.

Alanna Boyes said her husband was a selfless, loving, courageous man who was a wonderful father to their three-year-old son.

Recently he told her he was worried that some Canadians are undermining the military's efforts in the ravaged country.

"Justin and I believe in the mission in Afghanistan," she said Thursday.

"One of the things that frustrated him was the lack of support from the Canadian citizens he lived to protect. He said recently, 'We're not losing this war, but if we do, it's because we lost it at home first,'" she said.

Justin Boyes, an infantryman with the Edmonton-based 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was the 132nd Canadian soldier to be killed in Afghanistan since the mission began in 2002.

Knowing where you stand

Alderman proposes emergency marking system on city roads

DARREN KRAUSE
darren.krause@metronews.ca

In an emergency on unfamiliar Calgary roads or pathways, how would you describe your location to 911 so emergency responders could find you with ease?

A notice of motion by Ward 12 Ald. Ric McIver for city administration to bring back a report on the cost and implementation of a system to intermittently mark city roads and pathways with GIS proximity markers will go before city council on Monday, and it comes in response to discussion he's had with 911 responders.

"When people phone 911, many, many times they give very poor descriptions of where the incident has occurred," said McIver.

Easing the amount of time emergency crews search for vague locations, whether on Deerfoot trail or on city pathways, will improve service levels, and probably save lives, McIver said.

City manager of public safety communication Curtis Brochu agrees a system that helps those in crisis easily identify their location would have significant benefits. Brochu said it could be applied to major roadways and pathways, including the city's ring road, providing what he calls a "verifiable address," which would be mapped out by the city.

"People will be able to identify their locations easily, which will then speed up the system response. We'll be able to verify where they are and get emergency services on they way to them in a much quicker manner," said Brochu.

McIver estimates the entire project could cost $100,000.

Ald. Ric McIver hopes to see proximity markers along busy city roadways, like Deerfoot Trail, and possibly city pathways in order to aid those in emergency along those routes, by having them identify those markets for 911 dispatchers.

Stelmach rejects calls for billions in carbon offset fees

EMISSIONS Premier Ed Stelmach is rejecting a new report that calls for a massive wealth transfer from his province and Saskatchewan as part of a plan to reduce Canada's carbon emissions.

The report, by the Pembina Institute and the David Suzuki Foundation, says Ottawa should drain billions of dollars from the two energy-rich provinces through carbon levies as one way to meet Canada's greenhouse gas reduction targets.

"There won't be another wealth transfer to Ottawa under my watch."
Premier Ed Stelmach

Stelmach says Canada should look at other alternatives to reduce emissions that cause global warming. Alberta, he says, is suffering through a recession just like every other province and "you can't get blood out of a rock."

"There won't be another wealth transfer to Ottawa under my watch," he said. "There is already one wealth transfer program and that's equalization.

"In the last 10 years, the net transfer out of this province to Ottawa was $117 billion."

Stelmach is urging Canadians to focus on inventive ways to reduce emissions, rather than on carbon credits or imposing levies on energy producers which simply transfer wealth from one region to another. THE CANADIAN PRESS

CRASH A 47-year-old Calgary man is dead after a hang gliding crash near Camrose. Camrose RCMP were called around 1:15 p.m. to 25 km south of Camrose where the man, who had been gliding in the Battle River Valley, attempted to land when he lost control and crashed into a rock pile. Police believe the man died upon impact. The man's name is being withheld until next of kin are notified.

WEST LRT SNC Lavalin was awarded the design-build contract for the West LRT, Mayor Dave Bronconnier announced Thursday. The West LRT will expand eight kilometres west of the downtown and have six stations, two Park and Rides and the city's first underground and elevated LRT stations. "When this project is complete, we will have doubled the size of Calgary's LRT system in just over a decade," said Mayor Dave Bronconnier. METRO CALGARY

'Nothing is too weird'

Costume shop gets simple, sexy, newsy requests

KRISTA SYLVESTER

Like every Halloween, girls are going for sexy and guys are going for simple, according to a popular Calgary costume shop.

Alice in Wonderland, Little Red Riding Hood and Dorothy from the Wizard of Oz are a few of the costumes flying off the shelves this year, says "Joe" from the Costume Shoppe.

"The girls like to be sexy, have cute short dresses, things like that. Some of them are, I guess you could say, very revealing," Joe said.

As for the guys, superheroes and pirates are popular trends this year.

"Simple and easy is the better for the guys. They just like it basic, and superheroes can cover off a lot of different costumes."

While Michael Jackson costumes are also a hit this year, The Costume Shoppe didn't have any requests for another talked about news event this year — the balloon boy. "Nothing is too weird, we have heard it all, but nobody asked about that hoax."

Sarah Arthur said she is keeping it simple this year, and going as a police officer. "It's simple, sexy and fun," she added.

Judge throws book at war criminal

COURTS A Canadian judge has imposed the toughest sentence possible on a man convicted of committing atrocities during the 1994 Rwandan genocide, described as the worst possible crime a human being can commit.

In a historic case, Desire Munyaneza was sentenced Thursday to life imprisonment without possibility of parole for 25 years.

Quebec Superior Court Justice Andre Denis handed down the sentence in a case international legal observers followed closely because of the implications it could have on similar prosecutions both here and abroad.

He is the first person convicted under Canada's Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act, enacted in 2000.

"The accused, an educated man from a privileged background, chose to kill, rape and pillage in the name of his ethnic group's supremacy," Denis wrote in his judgment.

MIKE MCLAUGHLIN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

This photo of a sketch by courtroom artist Mike Mclaughlin shows Desire Munyaneza as he stands to hear the Quebec court sentence of life imprisonment with no parole for 25 years for seven charges against him in Montreal on Thursday.

"The sentence I am imposing is severe because the law considers the crimes committed by the accused to be the worst in existence.

"History has shown that what happened there (in Rwanda) can happen anywhere in the world, and that nobody is immune to such a tragedy."

With time already served since his arrest, the 42-year-old man will only become eligible for parole in 2030.

The defence is appealing the verdict.

Deadly delays?

Grits turn up heat on Tories

Delays have cost lives.

That's the Liberals' message as they take the Harper government to task over its handling of the vaccine to fight the H1N1 influenza virus (also known as swine flu).

Liberal MP Bob Rae asked Health Minister Leona Aglukkaq if she realized people have died — and will die — because of delays in ordering and rolling out the vaccine.

"Does she not understand that these delays have cost, and will cost, lives?" Rae said Thursday.

Industry Minister Tony Clement answered the first two questions for Aglukkaq, telling the House of Commons that six million doses of vaccine were to be delivered by Friday.

"By the end of next week, there will be an additional three million doses for a total of nine million doses for Canadians," Clement said.

But later, Rae again accused the Tories of foot-dragging on the vaccine.

"There are people who, unfortunately, have succumbed to the disease," he said.

"I think it's a reasonable thing to say that if they'd had the vaccine, it's quite possible their lives could have been saved."

Thousands of Canadians have been vaccinated since Aglukkaq approved a new H1N1 vaccine late last week — after other countries had begun vaccinations. There have been long lineups, confusion and frustration across the country. Public health officials have asked that only those deemed to be in high-risk categories get vaccinated this week.

Meanwhile, the chief of the association representing family physicians says doctors were left "scrambling" as H1N1 immunization programs rolled out and should have been much more involved in pandemic planning.

FUNDRAISER Child Find Ontario says money raised in memory of Victoria Stafford, including from her father Rodney Stafford's bike ride, reached more than $40,000. The group's executive director, John Durant, says the total was $42,687.78, adding the money raised by the "Kilometres for Kids" ride and donations made in Tori's name will be put to good use. Rodney Stafford spent six weeks riding his bike from Woodstock, Ont., to Edmonton, a distance of 4,300 kilometres.

H1N1 Delivery of H1N1 vaccine to the provinces will slow a bit over the next couple of weeks because the manufacturer was asked to make special batches for pregnant women, Canada's chief public health officer Thursday, adding he couldn't predict how much vaccine will flow to provinces over the next two weeks. Ads not working: Poll

POLITICS A new poll suggests the Harper government's multimillion-dollar, taxpayer-funded ad blitz to promote its stimulus plan doesn't seem to be having the desired effect.

The Canadian Press Harris-Decima survey also suggests most Canadians believe Liberal claims that stimulus spending favours Conservative ridings.

Less than a third of respondents to the poll said they were aware of any stimulus projects underway in their areas. A majority said they believed there's favouritism in the handing out of cash, but they didn't seem to be too concerned about it. The poll of just over 1,000 people was conducted Oct. 22-26. Six men, 44 murder convictions

Jury hands out guilty verdicts in biker gang massacre that stunned Canada

Forty-four first-degree murder convictions were returned against six men Thursday over the bloody internal cleansing of a Canadian Bandidos chapter.

Among the men was the outlaw biker who, the jury heard, masterminded the massacre — Wayne Kellestine.

Kellestine was found guilty of eight counts of first-degree murder after jury deliberations in London, Ont.

After all eight counts were read, Kellestine looked at lawyer Clay Powell and raised his eyebrows.

Was Kellestine expecting the guilty verdicts?

"I think he was," Powell said outside the court.

Eight men were shot dead and stuffed into four vehicles in southwestern Ontario in April, 2006.

During a six-month trial, prosecutors argued that seven of the eight men were led out of Kellestine's barn and murdered, one by one.

The jury, however, didn't put all the blame on Kellestine.

They found Dwight Mushey and ex-police officer Michael Sandham guilty of eight counts of first-degree murder.

Marcelo Aravena and Frank Mather were each found guilty of one count of manslaughter and seven counts of first-degree murder.

Brett Gardiner was found guilty of two counts of manslaughter and six of first-degree murder.

B.C.'s bad weather bill blows in HOMELESS The B.C. government introduced a controversial bill Thursday that will allow police to take homeless people to shelters in extreme weather. But the bill won't give officers the power to force them to stay.

Critics blasted the Assistance to Shelter Act when it was first proposed. But Housing and Social Development Minister Rich Coleman said the bill has nothing to do with sweeping Vancouver's homeless off the streets during the Winter Olympics.

He said the bill was prompted by the death of a Vancouver woman last winter who refused to be taken to a shelter.

Premiers warn of monopoly

Hydro-Quebec signs $5B agreement to purchase NB Power

Hydro-Quebec would get the majority of NB Power's assets under a proposed agreement worth nearly $5 billion signed Thursday by New Brunswick Premier Shawn Graham and Quebec Premier Jean Charest.

The premiers of Nova Scotia and Newfoundland and Labrador have warned the deal would give Hydro-Quebec a monopoly that could hinder other power development in the region.

But Graham says there will be opportunity for public debate before the closing date of the deal at the end of March 2010.

According to the memorandum of understanding, Hydro-Quebec would buy the assets for $4.75 billion — an amount equivalent to NB Power's debt — giving Quebec greater capacity to export power to the United States.

Those assets include transmission lines, offices and most generation facilities including the Point Lepreau nuclear power plant.

ANDREW VAUGHAN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Premier Jean Charest, left, and New Brunswick Premier Shawn Graham sign a memo of understanding regarding the takeover of NB Power by Hydro-Quebec in Fredericton Thursday.

"This agreement ... will also provide Quebec with a strategic geographic position with regards to the markets of Atlantic Canada and New England," Charest said.

Graham lauded the benefits it would bring to his province. "The elimination of NB Power's massive debt will help us attain self-sufficiency and relieve our children and grandchildren of this burden," he said. "Homeowners will see rates much lower than under the status quo, and we will now share Quebec's competitive industrial rates." THE CANADIAN PRESS

CSIS boss admonishes romanticizing terrorists

CRIME The head of Canada's spy agency says people accused of terrorism are too often portrayed as romantic revolutionaries.

Richard Fadden called today for a more nuanced debate, saying Canada is not immune from extremism.

He said Canada has a serious blind spot when it comes to genuine discussion of the terrorist threat.

As a result, the public often sees young people charged with plotting violence as too naive to carry out such deadly acts.

Fadden was addressing a conference of academics and security officials.

A longtime bureaucrat, Fadden took over as CSIS director in late June.

In July, the CSIS watchdog said CSIS may need major changes after finding it ignored concerns about human rights and Omar Khadr's young age in deciding to interview the Toronto-born teen at a U.S. military prison.

The Security Intelligence Review Committee called for "guidance and advice" from Public Safety Minister Peter Van Loan to help the spy service meet legal and public demands in the post-9-11 world. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Slain radical's son arrested in Canada

Father was killed in Detroit-area shootout

The son of the slain leader of a radical Detroit-area Islamic group was arrested in Canada on Thursday.

His capture came a day after the FBI arrested several members of the group and a raid at a suburban warehouse ended in gunfire.

The FBI asked for the public's help in catching two of the 11 suspects in the case still at large.

And they emphasized that the group, a faction of the radical U.S. Sunni Islamic group Ummah, held beliefs that were not at all representative of mainstream Islam.

"Any Muslim ... would not recognize this as the Muslim faith."
FBI's Andrew Arena

"Any Muslim who took a look at what these people believed would not recognize this as the Muslim faith," said Andrew Arena, the head of the FBI in Detroit.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police arrested Mujahid Carswell, the 30-year-old son of slain group leader Luqman Ameen Abdullah, across the Detroit River in Windsor, where Carswell lived, the FBI said.

Abdullah, 53, was killed during a shootout Wednesday with federal agents.

He was one of 11 people named in a criminal complaint. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pickton probe wraps up

CRIME Police are wrapping up their investigation into six more missing women whose DNA was found on Robert Pickton's farm.

RCMP Cpl. Annie Linteau said Thursday that investigators are preparing to turn over to the Crown their report into the six cases, but the report does not recommend charges.

Pickton was arrested in 2002 and charged with 26 counts of first-degree murder in the disappearances of women from Vancouver's Downtown Eastside.

He was tried on only six counts, convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to life in prison with no parole.

Cash for kids in Argentina

POVERTY Argentina's President Cristina Fernandez decreed Thursday that Argentina will provide direct cash subsidies of about $50 a month per child to families whose parents are unemployed or work informally. Fernandez said the subsidy will be provided for up to five children per family until they are 18 years old, and there's no age limit with disabled children. Parents need only prove that their children attend school and are vaccinated.

Tough words from Clinton

U.S. Secretary of State talks tough on visit to Pakistan

U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said Thursday that Pakistan squandered opportunities over the years to kill or capture leaders of the al-Qaida terrorist network responsible for the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks.

While U.S. officials have said they believe Osama bin Laden and senior lieutenants have been hiding in the rugged terrain along the border with Afghanistan, Clinton's unusually blunt comments went further as she suggested that Pakistan's government has done too little to act against al-Qaida's top echelon.

"I find it hard to believe that nobody in your government knows where they are and couldn't get them if they really wanted to," Clinton told Pakistani journalists in Lahore. "Maybe that's the case. Maybe they're not gettable. I don't know."

With the country reeling from Wednesday's devastating bombing that killed at least 105 people in Peshawar, Clinton also engaged in an intense give-and-take with students at the Government College of Lahore.

She insisted that inaction by the government would have ceded ground to terrorists. "If you want to see your territory shrink, that's your choice," she said, adding that she believed it would be a bad choice.

News in brief

SOMALIA A British man kidnapped by Somalian pirates while vacationing on a yacht with his wife said in an interview Thursday that the bandits had crept aboard while he was asleep and demanded money. Paul Chandler told Britain's ITV that he and his wife were being held aboard a container ship off the Somali coast. The satellite phone connection was lost before he could answer how the couple were being treated.

LOS ANGELES A gunman escaped after wounding two men in the parking garage of a North Hollywood synagogue Thursday, frightening worshippers who heard gunshots and screams before the bleeding victims stumbled in. Police initially feared the attack was a hate crime and briefly held a teenager who matched a vague description of the attacker. The 17-year-old was released a short time later, and police continued their hunt for the assailant. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Passports possibly linked to 9-11 found

Pakistani soldiers battling their way into a Taliban stronghold along the Afghan border have seized passports that may be linked to 9-11 suspects, as they confront an enemy skilled in operating in a mountainous terrain with endless ways to wage a guerrilla war.

The military on Thursday took journalists for a first look inside the largely lawless territory since it launched a ground offensive here in mid-October.

The U.S.-backed operation is focused on a section of the tribal region where the Pakistani Taliban are based and are believed to shelter al-Qaida.

Soldiers displayed passports seized in the operation, among them a German document belonging to a man named Said Bahaji. That matches the name of a man thought to have been a member of the Hamburg cell that conceived the 9-11 attacks. Bahaji is believed to have fled Germany shortly before the attacks in New York and Washington.

The passport included a tourist visa for Pakistan and a stamp indicating he'd arrived in the southern city of Karachi on Sept. 4, 2001.

Another passport, from Spain, bears the name of Raquel Burgos Garcia. Spanish media have reported that a woman with the same name is married to Amer Azizi, an alleged al-Qaida member from Morocco suspected in both the 9/11 attacks and the Madrid train bombings in 2004.

Her family in Madrid has had no news of her since 2001, according to Spanish media. Her passport included visas to India and Iran.

- It was impossible to determine whether the passports are genuine, and German and Spanish officials did not immediately respond to requests for comment.

Argentina begins gay marriage debate

Gay and lesbian activists think so — and they have a growing number of supporters in Congress, which opened debate Thursday on whether to change dozens of laws that define marriage.

Couple charged with kidnap and rape appear in court

ABDUCTION The couple charged with kidnapping and raping Jaycee Lee Dugard made a brief court appearance Thursday for a hearing that gave two people with personal stakes in the case their first glimpses of the defendants in court.

Phillip and Nancy Garrido were in El Dorado County Superior Court for two minutes before they were ordered to return for another case update on Dec. 11.

Nancy Garrido smiled at her attorney, while Phillip Garrido kept his eyes on the judge.

They have pleaded not guilty. Their defence lawyers did not make any statements.

Neither Dugard nor any members of her immediate family went to the hearing.

But it was attended by the woman Phillip Garrido was convicted of raping and kidnapping in 1976, as well as a Southern California man who says he is Dugard's biological father.

Obama honours fallen U.S. troops

Standing in the pre-dawn darkness, President Barack Obama saw the real cost of the war in Afghanistan: The Americans who return in flag-covered cases while much of the nation sleeps in peace.

In a surprise midnight dash to this Delaware base where U.S. forces killed overseas come home, Obama honoured the return on Thursday of 18 fallen Americans. All were killed in Afghanistan this week, a brutal stretch that turned October into the most deadly month for U.S. troops since the war began.

"It was a sobering reminder of the extraordinary sacrifices that our young men and women in uniform are engaging in every single day, not only our troops but their families as well," Obama said later, hours after his return to the White House. "The burden that both our troops and their families bear in any wartime situation is going to bear on how I see these conflicts, and it is something that I think about each and every day."

"The burden that both our troops and their families bear in any wartime situation is ... something that I think about each and every day."
U.S. President Barack Obama

The dramatic image of a president on the tarmac was a portrait not witnessed in years.

Former President George W. Bush said the appropriate way to show his respect for war's cost was to meet with grieving military families in private, as he often did, but he never went to Dover to observe the remains coming off the cargo plane. Obama did so with the weight of knowing he may soon send more troops off to war.

Dale R. Griffin, an Army sergeant from Indiana, was the last fallen soldier to come before Obama. His remains were the only ones be honoured in full view of the media. An 18-year ban on such coverage, dating to the 1991 Gulf War and strengthened by Bush, was relaxed this year under Obama's watch, allowing families to decide whether cameras can document the return.

Nearly two-thirds have said yes.

Magistrates protest after Italian premier's latest barbs

WORDS With fraud and corruption trials looming, Premier Silvio Berlusconi is sparring with Italy's magistrates, who threatened on Thursday to go on strike to protest his branding them as communists targeting a billionaire.

For decades, the conservative three-time premier has badmouthed the judiciary, which he contends is dominated by left-leaning magistrates who have investigated his dealings connected to his media companies, his soccer club and other business interests.

This week the vitriol turned particularly venomous, when Berlusconi told a talk show on Italian state TV that judges and prosecutors are communists biased against him, a billionaire businessman-turned-politician. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fighter jets almost deployed on wayward plane

The U.S. military would have launched fighter jets to track down an errant Northwest Airlines flight that overshot its destination if officials had been notified sooner, a top commander said Thursday as federal authorities defended the decision to revoke the licences of the pilots involved.

Gen. Gene Renuart, who heads U.S. Northern Command, said he learned of the incident just four or five minutes before the Federal Aviation Administration regained contact with the pilots, who flew 150 miles past their destination, the upper Midwest city of Minneapolis.

Renuart said fighter jets were taxiing to the runway and should have been airborne, but they were held back when FAA officials told military commanders they thought they were re-establishing contact with the flight.

German man dumped, lives in Brazil airport

A German man reportedly dumped by a Brazilian woman he met on the Internet has been living in an airport for 13 days and isn't saying when he will leave.

The man, identified by authorities as Heinz Muller, is out of money, according to airport workers, some of whom bring him meals from the food court.

The 46-year-old former pilot passes the time wandering the airport in Campinas, an industrial city about an hour's drive from Sao Paulo, or using his laptop perched on a luggage cart. Occasionally he speaks to workers and passengers in basic Portuguese mixed with some Spanish.

Muller arrived in Rio de Janeiro on Oct. 2 and can stay as long as he breaks no laws, said a spokesman for Brazil's civil aviation authority.

Most European tourists are allowed to stay three months in Brazil, presumably giving Muller until early January before he would face deportation.

The spokesman also confirmed reports that Muller said he ended up at the airport after being dumped by a woman living nearby. He visited after meeting her on the Internet.

Muller washes himself in the airport bathrooms and sleeps on chairs in the airport's only terminal.

In a brief interview in English, he said that airport workers "are treating me OK" and that he wants to move permanently to Latin America's largest country.

"I want to be living in Brazil in somewhere pretty," he said, declining to elaborate after an Associated Press reporter would not buy him the computer cable he demanded in return for answering questions.

Obama considered Clinton for running mate, book says

POLITICS Barack Obama seriously considered Hillary Rodham Clinton for the vice-presidency, even though his top aides were not enthusiastic about it, his presidential campaign manager says in a new memoir.

"Neither Ax (top-level adviser David Axelrod) nor I were fans of the Hillary option," David Plouffe, who ran Obama's 2008 race, said in his memoir, portions of which were published by Time magazine Thursday.

"What surprised me was that Obama was clearly thinking more seriously about picking Hillary Clinton than Ax and I had realized," Plouffe wrote, describing a meeting the three had in early 2008 when it became clear Obama would be the Democratic candidate.

Plouffe also wrote that "we had initially received a lot of advice from many of (Clinton's) supporters to pick her, though this 'advice' was perhaps more accurately described as subtle pressure."

Hire wedding planners for flu clinics

UrbanCompass

Janice Paskey

metronews.ca/paskey

Chairs. If Stephen Duckett, head bureaucratic honcho of our health system, put out chairs for all the people lining up for H1N1 vaccines this week, I'd be OK with his bonus.

It would show he thinks about people, not "populations."

Yet, the Health Link advice line can no longer field calls from humans.

The Alberta Health Services Board held a public meeting Thursday. The bylaws forbid a member of the public from actually making a comment.

Stephen Duckett, Alberta Health Minister Ron Liepert, move over.

To manage the H1N1 crisis, we need a wedding planner.

Amy Slater is one. She runs Down to Their Socks Wedding & Event Planning and wonders why H1N1 clinics are in some strip malls.

"A better location would have been a venue with a huge parking lot that can facilitate many vehicles and would not affect day-to-day business such as, perhaps, the Calgary Farmers' market or Crossroads Market."

Ciara Dayken, CEO of Firefly Occasions Inc., would remedy the situation with an online form so paperwork is completed in advance. "Just like asking wedding guests for their meal choice before the wedding so the kitchen is prepared, the online form would ease lineups."

Flu Outbreak

She thinks there should be an online and offline way to make an appointment. "Then priority cases could be distinguished, just as we distinguish wedding VIPs who have special needs."

Dayken understands planning means comfort. Just as she doesn't want wedding guests asking the bride and groom organizational questions, she would spare the H1N1 clinic receptionist and medical staff. "I would have at least four co-ordinators at each clinic to make their way from person to person to see if they can make their experience better and answer any questions."

She would try to reduce vaccine jitters with essential oil candles and calming music.

Like Amy Slater, Dayken questions the clinic venues.

"I would never advise a bride to invite 500 guests to a venue that fits max 150. Even if the entire 500 were not going to show up you must plan for them anyway."

In the case of the H1N1 flu clinics, four clinics in a city of a million people is not enough.

The wedding planner can teach our health officials just how it's supposed to be done. I suspect she would even offer them a chair.

Worth mentioning

Needles give some people high anxiety

Flu Outbreak

As Canadians roll up their sleeves for the H1N1 vaccination, there will likely be a few faces in the long lineups cringing at the thought of what's to come — perhaps not the vaccine itself, but the delivery method.

Needles have been known to elicit tears and even fainting episodes among those queasy, anxious or fearful about being pricked. And experts say festering thoughts of potential imminent pain from a shot could weigh on some people's decisions about whether to get vaccinated in the first place.

"I think people may have concerns about vaccines for a variety of reasons, but pain and the actual fear of getting the injection is often the barrier that prevents people from getting the vaccine," said pediatric psychologist Christine Chambers, a Canada Research Chair in pain and child health, based at Dalhousie University and the IWK Health Centre in Halifax.

"Certainly people who are anxious in general are more likely to be fearful about other consequences and other side-effects that they see might be associated with the vaccine."

Five to 10 per cent of people will admit to not getting vaccinated because of pain, said Anna Taddio, an adjunct scientist and pharmacist at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

Chambers and Taddio say there are strategies that can help effectively reduce pain as well as anxiety, particularly among young people.

Chambers recommends parents purchase a topical anesthetic cream that can significantly reduce pain. Taddio suggests applying a numbing cream 30 minutes beforehand — a cream that uses the same chemicals dentists use in patients' mouths.

For infants, breastfeeding during injections can help reduce pain. Distracting a child's attention away from pain could include talking to or giving small toys to babies and young kids, or bringing a small DVD player or iPod along.

Taddio said it's beneficial for children four and up to know about the needle beforehand because explaining what's going to happen will help to prepare them.

Recovery not yet creating jobs

Canada's slow climb out of a recession appears to be doing little to foster growth in the domestic job market so far.

Statistics Canada says the number of non-farm jobs in the country fell by 0.8 per cent in August from July, when it registered an increase. The results were pulled down by a drop in educational services jobs, though a lower number of hirings has been seen in many different sectors.

The agency reported that more than 70 per cent of industries surveyed posted losses, the largest number since last January. Other recent economic reports also question whether Canada's economy is poised for recovery this quarter.

A study by the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives says the economy is actually still in a recession, and any expectations of a quick rebound in the private sector are unfounded.

On the upside, a survey from the Ontario Trucking Association shows 71 per cent of Ontario trucking companies who responded believe Canada's economy has hit bottom.

South of the border, the American economy delivered its best growth in two years during the third quarter, climbing 3.5 per cent, but the momentum was drawn primarily from government subsidies.

CRTC squashes Globalive bid

COMMUNICATIONS Globalive is still hoping to be a new national cellphone player even though its launch was put in doubt Thursday after the CRTC ruled the company isn't Canadian enough.

The regulator says Globalive doesn't meet the Canadian ownership and control requirements to operate as a telecommunications carrier. Globalive wants to be Canada's fourth major wireless carrier and compete with Rogers, Bell and Telus.

"With this decision, the CRTC has put new competition at risk," said chairman Anthony Lacavera on Thursday. "We know Canadians want a new choice in wireless."

Egyptian telecom company Orascom owns 65 per cent of Globalive, a structure accepted by Industry Canada when its licence was granted last March. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Drilling company cites slow economy as cause for lower earnings

Exxon says oil production rebounding

The world's largest publicly traded oil company said yesterday that oil production is bouncing back with crude prices.

A worldwide glut in petroleum supplies may yet cool the latest surge in oil, squeezing refiners and keeping profits in oil patch well below their peak last year or even the past several years.

Exxon Mobil Corp. reported that profits from July to September dropped 68 per cent to $4.73 billion US, or 98 cents per share. The results were the best of the year so far, but they're less than a third of what Exxon earned in the same period of 2008, when crude prices spiked above $147 US a barrel.

Down the pipeline

- Net income fell in the third quarter across Exxon's various operations.

In fact, excluding the previous quarters this year, Exxon has not reported quarterly profits this low in at least the past four years.

Its oil refining business posted a loss of $203 million in the United States compared with a profit of $978 million in the same three-month period of 2008.

Overall, Exxon's refining, or downstream, operation took a beating with profits falling 89 per cent to $325 million compared with the year-ago period.

Exxon Mobil's Canadian unit, Calgary-based Imperial Oil Ltd. was slated to release its financial results late yesterday.

Bottoms up for beverage corporation

CHEERS Beverage maker Cott Corp. reported a net profit for its third quarter yesterday, reversing a year-earlier loss through stringent cost control, optimized capital expenditures, and improved customer relations.

The world's third-largest soft drink producer, providing many retailers and grocers with store-branded products, said Thursday it made a profit of US$13.9 million or 18 cents per share in the quarter ended Sept. 26.

This was a significant improvement from a net loss of US$87.6 million or $1.25 per share a year ago.

Meanwhile the company, which keeps its books in U.S. dollars, said its quarterly revenue dipped to $404.9 million from $420.5 million a year ago but met analyst expectations.

Estimates compiled by Thompson Reuters predicted third-quarter revenue of $405 million and earnings per share of 16 cents per share.

Cott noted that once the impact of foreign exchange was excluded, revenue for the quarter had increased by 1.1 per cent.

Limping Lions set to face Stampeders

CFL PREVIEW

Stampeders at Lions

VS

Coach Wally Buono of the B.C. Lions must be one of those glass-is-half-full guys.

Injuries forced him to start four different quarterbacks this CFL season and a fifth is waiting in the wings.

Tailback Martell Mallet, who led the league in rushing until he hurt his foot, didn't practise again Thursday as the Lions prepared for the Calgary Stampeders on Saturday night.

The offensive line has been shuffled after centre Angus Reid, who calls blocking assignments, suffered a broken ankle after 142 consecutive starts.

Yet Buono said the Lions have been fairly fortunate on the injury front.

"I don't believe the injuries have caused us to be what we are, which is 8-8," Buono said. "The guys who have stepped up for the guys who are injured have done a decent job. It's more about finishing a game, finishing a drive."

But there are more Lions on the limp.

Quarterbacks Buck Pierce, Travis Lulay and Jarious Jackson, all of whom have won at least one start this season, have shoulder problems, prompting B.C. to bring back Casey Printers, the league's most outstanding player five seasons ago.

The 9-6-1 Stampeders, who are tied with the Saskatchewan Roughriders for first in the West, will be looking to at least lock up a home playoff date against the Lions. The Riders can do the same if they win in Hamilton or B.C. loses.

The Lions can grab at least a playoff berth with a win or if both Hamilton and Winnipeg lose.

Athens Olympic flame

THANASSIS STAVRAKIS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greek actress Maria Nafpliotou, who plays the role of high priestess, gives the Olympic torch to Greek Olympic Committee head Spyros Capralos Thursday in Athens. The flame was handed to John Furlong, CEO of VANOC, and now begins a 106-day relay through Canada to Vancouver.

Sports in brief

BASEBALL The Toronto Blue Jays claimed left-handed pitcher Sean Henn from the Baltimore Orioles roster Thursday. Henn, a 28-year-old reliever, played with Minnesota and Baltimore last season. He posted a 0-3 record with a 7.53 earned-run average in 26 games. To make room on the 40-man roster, the Jays designated catcher Michael Barrett for assignment.

FORMULA ONE Nico Rosberg will be driving in his last race for Formula One team Williams at this weekend's Abu Dhabi Grand Prix. Rosberg confirmed his decision Thursday without saying which team he would join in 2010. Brawn GP or McLaren are thought to be the major contenders for the German's signature.

SOCCER D.C. United president Kevin Payne was fined $5,000 US by Major League Soccer, then apologized Thursday for criticizing the league and three of its teams. Payne was fined for saying there are "a lot of games in our league that I can't watch."

Embrace the flame

Critics missing the point of Olympic torch relay

The Olympic flame is in Canada. The longest torch relay in history is underway.

It's time for the dissent to stop and for us to be gracious hosts.

Incredibly, there are a significant number of people in this enlightened nation who don't get it. They complain about everything from the corporate greed embodied by the Games to the fact the torch relay was first conducted in 1936 in Berlin, the so-called "Nazi Olympics."

These doubters also claim the Olympics will somehow bankrupt our affluent country and that, "…the average Joe is being screwed by corporations and the government so they can have a party."

Even Sidney Crosby, perhaps Canada's greatest hockey talent, is drawing fire in some quarters for being chosen to run the Olympic torch through a portion of his native Nova Scotia.

What gives?

The critics are missing the point.

Yes, the Olympics have become corrupted over time and often resemble a commercial enterprise instead of the universal movement of peace and understanding they were originally meant to be. But while it's true the Games have become, on occasion, an example of clubby excess, they do have a redeeming quality at their very foundation.

The Olympics are designed to celebrate the potential of youth and demonstrate the possibilities for harmony and co-existence. In short, they are an alternative to the strife and misunderstanding that pervades the planet most of the time.

Isn't that worth our allegiance — or at least an open mind as the torch relay in Canada begins?

The Vancouver/Whistler 2010 Olympics are now inevitable. As the host nation, Canada is the caretaker of the Olympic spirit, which, by the way, is what the flame is meant to represent.

It's time to step up.

One torchbearer and bank executive I talked to, who works for a competitor of the relay's title sponsor, summed up her motivation behind carrying the flame.

"It's a symbol of the Games and the values they represent," she told me. "It's about having a meaningful goal, commitment to discipline, community and sportsmanship. These are all worthy values I would hope to impart to my children."

Now that's why we should all embrace the flame.

It's because the torch represents hope that there is some goodness to be found when it reaches its destination in the Olympic city.

"While it's true the Games have become, on occasion, an example of clubby excess, they do have a redeeming quality at their very foundation."

Scott Russell is the host of CBC Sports Weekend seen Saturday afternoons. He has covered professional and amateur sports including nine Olympic games and numerous world championships.

New York's Hideki Matsui hits a single off Philadelphia starting pitcher Pedro Martinez during Game 2 of the World Series on Thursday night at Yankee Stadium.

BASEBALL A.J. Burnett outdueled Pedro Martinez while Mark Teixeira and Hideki Matsui each homered for New York, as the Yankees pulled even in the World Series with a 3-1 victory over the Phillies in Game 2.

Philadelphia used a superlative effort from Cliff Lee to take Wednesday's opener 6-1 at Yankee Stadium.

Burnett (1-0) countered with a gem of his own in his first career start in the Fall Classic, surrendering just one run on four hits and two walks in seven frames. The hard-throwing righty also struck out nine against the team that roughed him up for five runs in a six-inning start back in May.

Jorge Posada added a pinch-hit RBI for the Yankees, and Mariano Rivera closed it out with a six-out save, highlighted by an inning-ending double-play ball off the bat of Chase Utley in the eighth.

Martinez (0-1), the longtime Yankees rival and lightning rod for media attention, turned in a quality outing for Philadelphia, ending with a line of three runs on six hits and two walks with eight punchouts in six-plus innings.

Gone with the Goats

Jeff Bridges channels '60s experience in black comedy

ANN BRODIE
for Metro C anada

Jeff Bridges is the kind of guy you'd like for a friend. He's affable and honest, and completely unspoiled by the Hollywood successes of his father Lloyd and his own considerable clout.

In fact, he's really just a sensitive guy — still in love with his wife, Susie, after three decades of marriage.

"We've been married 33 years, and it just keeps getting better, more intimate, sexier, and you want to keep that going, you don't want to mess with that, you want to keep it constant," says the former teen heartthrob.

Bridges is currently starring in the black comedy The Men Who Stare at Goats, a sharp look at U.S. paranormal military experiments begun during the Vietnam War — and which he says may still be in use.

Bridges' character formulates Project Jedi, a New Age soliders' initiative, with the full blessing of the military.

"I got to talk to Lt. Colonel Jim Channon, the guy who my character is based on, who is still very much into this thing," says Bridges

Movie feature

"If you go to his website, First Earth Battalion you can see what he's up to and it's basically it's the same stuff."

According to Channon's site "Project Jedi was … undertaken by the US military in the late 1970s to create a super soldier that would possess superior strength, intelligence, cunning, intuition."

Bridges says he asked Channon if he felt the film made a mockery of his experiments and his life.

"He said 'No, I just want people to come to my website, people who are going to get it are going to get it. People who are going to pooh-pooh it are going to pooh-pooh it, but the people who have a little bit of curiosity, and are really going to get it. That's what I'm looking for. Those are the people I'm trying to attract.'"

Copious amounts of LSD are used by the characters in the film, and Bridges says it brought back memories of the '60s for him — including the former Sea Hunt star's time with John Lilly.

"He was the one communicating with dolphins. He invented the isolation tank, and I was actually a subject for his testing, saw what the tank was like. I did a lot of time in the tank."

Collector dubious torture porn

The Collector

Director: Marcus Dunstan
Stars: Josh Stewart, Karley Scott Collins
Classification: STC
Rating: ●

ADAM NAYMAN
for Metro Canada

Andrea Roth stars in The Collector.

REVIEW The relative commercial failure of Saw VI has some industry observers wondering if the torture-porn boom is finally at an end. If so, credit Marcus Dunstan's The Collector for getting in just under the (taut, serrated) wire. And frankly, opportunism is the only thing that this direct-to-DVD quality film has going for it.

Even more so than the Saw films, The Collector traffics in flayed flesh and viscera spilled in the dubious name of entertainment.

But in lieu of the platitudinous Jigsaw killer, Dunstan gives us nameless, masked brute whose M.O. appears to be breaking into homes at random and subjecting the inhabitants to unspeakable (and atrociously filmed) acts of torture.

Dunstan and his co-writer, Patrick Melton (who also has credits on several Saw films) have concocted a scenario that isn't necessarily un-clever: having spent the past few months casing a well-to-do household under the guise of doing home repairs, sad-eyed handyman/doting father Arkin (Josh Stewart) returns under cover of nightfall for the (non-violent) extraction of a diamond from the family safe when he realizes that — ominous music cue — he isn't alone in the house.

It seems that the titular killer has gotten there first, and outfitted the premises with a series of booby traps whose Rube Goldbergian ridiculousness is exacerbated by the fact that, with his victims safely trussed, he seems to have no use for them in the first place.

Unless, of course, The Collector was planning to be interrupted at random by a handsome cat burglar, in which case Dunstan and Pelton probably should have made a movie about an evil psychic.

Capturing the magic of live music

InFocus
Richard Crouse
metronews.ca/infocus

As a general rule concert movies stink. Nothing can replace the experience of seeing a live band up-close-and-personal, the energy of the crowd or feeling the spray from flying fingers on a sweat soaked fret board.

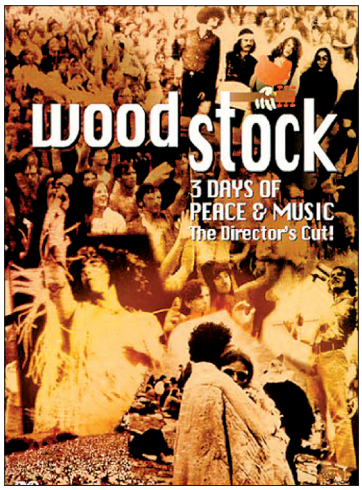
Often the only thing concert films have over a live show is the absence of a guy who looks like the Big Lebowski and smells like the inside of Cheech and Chong's bong sitting in the seat next to you.

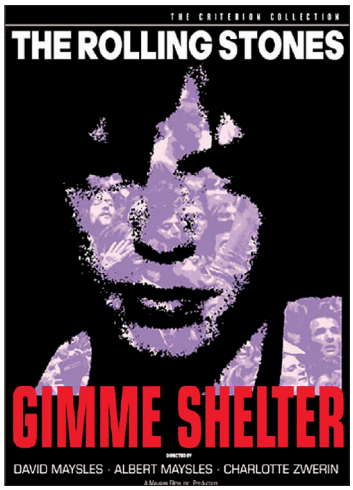
This week the world gets a look at the greatest concert that never was, Michael Jackson's rehearsals for his comeback tour. Is This is It a great film? No, but like the best concert films it works because it captures a time and performance that will never be duplicated.

The best-known concert film, Woodstock, is also more than just a series of musical performances; it's the movie that defined the hippie era.

It's a vivid document of that wild weekend 40 years ago, so finely crafted it may be the next best thing to having been there. In fact, perhaps it's better than the real thing, what with the hippie audience's dubious affiliation to hygiene and the lack of porta-potties on site.

Less known but just as electrifying is 1965's The T.A.M.I. Show. It's not as flashy as Woodstock — it was shot with TV cameras by a crew from The Steve Allen Show — but contains a show-stopping performance that Rick Rubin says "may be the single greatest rock & roll performance ever captured on film."





While Woodstock showed the fun side of the '60s, Gimme Shelter featured footage from a Rolling Stones concert where an audience member was stabbed to death by the Hells Angels.

Simply put James Brown rocks the house. Writer Nelson George described Brown's incredible "camel-walking, proto-moon-walking" as an "athletically daring performance" and Prince is such a fan of the footage he has it playing on a loop on his office lobby television.

If Woodstock and T.A.M.I. showed the fun, hip side of the 1960s, Gimme Shelter is the flip side. Shot during the last ten days of the Rolling Stones' 1969 North American tour and culminating with the stabbing death of audience member Meredith Hunter by the Hells Angels as the band plays Under My Thumb, it's a startling look at the end of the 1960s.

"Is This is It a great film? No, but like the best concert films it works because it captures a time and performance that will never be duplicated."

Also worth a look are Sweet Toronto, a 1970 doc featuring John Lennon and the Plastic Ono Band, Ziggy Stardust and the Spiders from Mars, David Bowie's July 3, 1973 "retirement" concert and Stop Making Sense, the Talking Heads live in Hollywood in 1983.

Richard Crouse's Movie Show can be seen every Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on the E! Channel; mrchaos33@hotmail.com.

Carrey characters galore in Carol

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

Filmmaker Robert Zemeckis may have worked with the likes of Meryl Streep and Tom Hanks but the actor who really bowled him over making his latest film was none other than Jim Carrey.

"He's pretty amazing," said Zemeckis during a recent interview. "He works so incredibly hard and he never stops so you come away with hours of all-wonderful, usable material. The hardest part that a filmmaker has is deciding what not to put in (the film)."

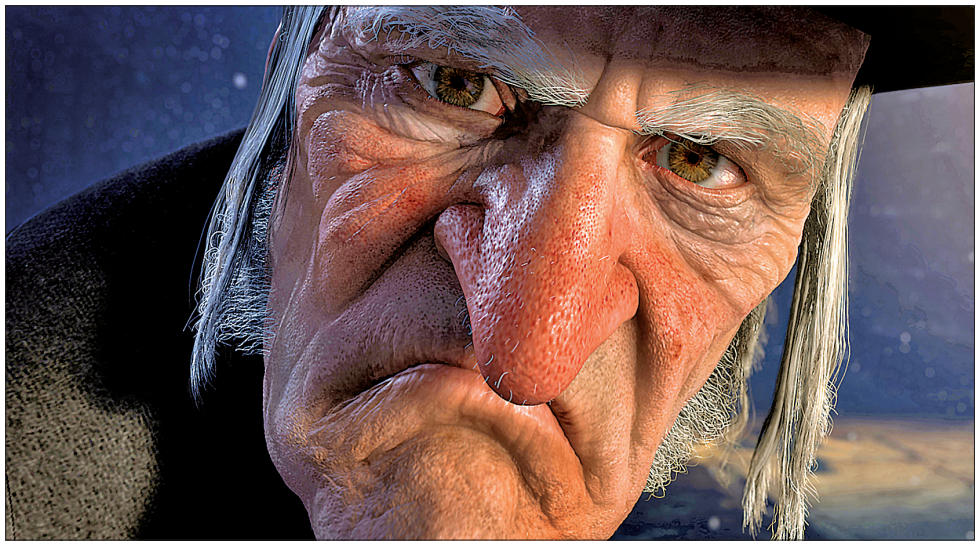
It's perhaps even more to Carrey's credit that Zemeckis happened to hire the Canadian funnyman to portray no less than seven characters in the director's re-telling of Charles Dickens' holiday masterpiece, A Christmas Carol.

"From day one, the idea was that if Jim was interested in doing this, I think he should play Scrooge not just at different ages but also the ghosts because I figure when you've got an actor whose as versatile as that, why not?"

"(Jim Carrey) never stops so you come away with hours of all-wonderful, usable material."
Robert Zemeckis

Besides, as the Oscar-winning director of Forrest Gump pointed out, versatility is of the utmost importance when creating as iconic a character as Ebenezer Scrooge.

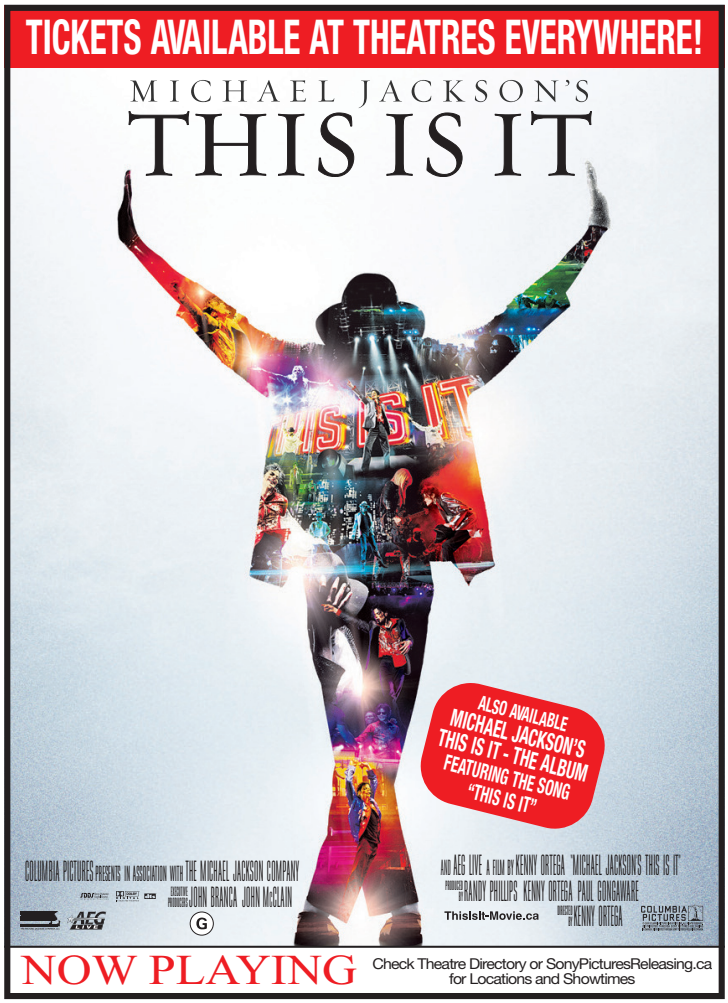
"It's the whole game," explained Zemeckis. "The poetry of screenwriting is character and dialogue and the rest is just writing enough to trigger images in a director's mind but I think the foundation — the glue if you will — of any movie is found in character."



Jim Carrey plays Scrooge and other characters in A Christmas Carol.

However, A Christmas Carol adds a technical twist too. There are no sets and no costumes. Utilizing the same motion-capture wizardry he crafted with 2004's The Polar Express, Zemeckis instead strapped Carrey with sensors that recorded his slightest motions. From there, the actor's performance is re-animated in the fantastical world of Dickens' classic where Scrooge learns the lessons of his own discontent.

"The whole story is wonderful because it represents a very universal story of redemption," said Zemeckis.



Chanel decent biopic

Coco Avant Chanel

Director: Anne Fontaine
Stars: Audrey Tautou, Benoit Peolvoorde
Classification: STC
Rating: ●●●

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

Coco Avant Chanel, starring Audrey Tautou, chronicles the early days of the fashion icon.

Coco Avant Chanel is a prestige picture from France being trotted out for Oscar attention. The movie hits many of the Academy's sweet spots: It's a period piece, a biopic, and a movie about female independence.

Awards attention is inevitable but whether or not it is deserved is another matter.

Coco Avant Chanel is a decent telling of the early days of fashion icon Gabrielle "Coco" Chanel.

The film picks up with Coco in her 20s trying to become a singer in sleazy French nightclubs. Coco is determined not to fall into a life of servitude to a man, but sadly seems to have no alternative. She ends up living with an absurdly rich aristocrat and scoffs at his wasteful lifestyle.

She starts wearing more masculine clothing to the chagrin of upper-class Parisians, who soon start copying her style. Then she falls in love with a handsome young Englishman who she can never have. In the end, she chooses independence purely because she can't be with the man she loves.

This seems like an awkward way to present a character that is supposed to be an early symbol of female independence. Coco decides to go out on her own purely because her two attempts at finding a male companion failed.

This muddled message aside, the movie is gorgeously made. Director Anne Fontaine vividly recreates turn of the century France and gracefully spins her yarn through painterly cinematography.

Audrey Tautou excels as Coco.

Tegan and Sara double up

Twin sisters mourn the loss of love on new album Sainthood

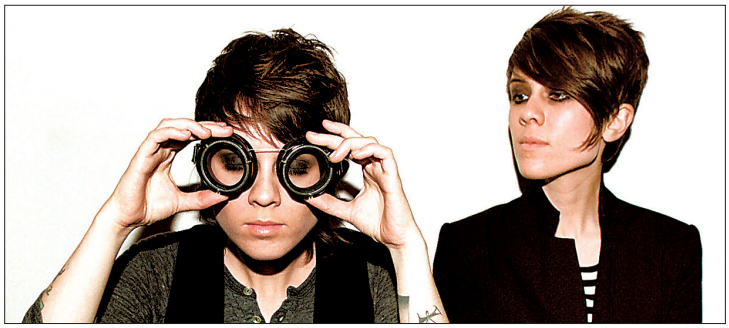
BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Canada

It's likely every single musician has written a song, if not a whole album, about love. So after five records it was about time Tegan and Sara delved into the time-honoured subject. But these tunes aren't coming from a happy place.

"After we finished the last record we realized we were right around the age when our parents got divorced," says Calgary-raised Tegan Quin. "We were five and they were 27 — both of us at 27 ended long relationships. It was very similar to our parents."

Most people would find their parents' divorce difficult to discuss, but Quin's surprisingly candid about that part of her of her life, and her own relationship troubles.

"It's almost like a death," she says of her break up. "There's also the disappointment in the idea of the societal implications around a failure of a relationship. When do you become a weird spinster?"



Sainthood is the fifth album from Tegan and Sara. It was released this week.

"There's also the disappointment in the idea of the societal implications around a failure of a relationship." Tegan

Some of these thoughts wind up on the duo's new disc of infectious power pop tunes, but most of the tracks deal with the pain of a dissolving relationship — lies, deception, questioning and despair. It's not very upbeat stuff.

Still, Quin's optimistic about her chances for ever lasting love. "Anyone can stay in one relationship. With practice and time you can spend whole life with someone and be satisfied," she says. "Maybe it's less that there is the one or is this the one. We're wired and chemically driven to find that again and again."

Even when a relationship sours, though, Tegan has her twin sister to fall back on and vice versa. They seem to play up a sibling rivalry in the press, but you can't hole up in a New Orleans rehearsal space with someone and write music if you're not extremely fond of them.

"We just rented a space, just the two of us. We were literally in one room together for five days," Quin recalls. "It was good, but boring. It was like, your guitar sounds good, it's my turn."

Those songs didn't wind up on Sainthood, though Quin expects them to be released at some point down the road. It did mark the first time, she says, that her and her sister wrote together. They kept that up when they started to lay down tracks for the new disc.

"We've always done variations of what some people consider writing," she explains. "But this record we actually sat down and wrote songs together. We also wrote music that we sent to each other over e-mail to finish."

Clearly, the sometimes-clashing sisters got a long well during Sainthood's writing process. But, like any couple they fought. The difference between them and the relationships they write about, though, is that Tegan and Sara always get back together.

"Two or three times a year we scream at each other hysterically," she says. "It feels safer when Sara and I are doing it though. No matter what happens one of us will have to come back."

Vehicles to become Wi-Fi hotspots, but beware of distracted drivers

SoundCheck

Alan Cross

metronews.ca/soundcheck

Now that talking and texting on your cell while driving is a felonious act in Ontario as of this week, discussion has turned to the various things that distract drivers.

While I personally agree that hands-free is the way to go for mobiles and that no one in their right mind would text behind the wheel, you know what the Nanny State can be like. The natural inclination of regulators is to regulate.

Radios with dozens of presets accessible only through tiny little buttons can't be safe. Satellite radio? It all depends on the receiver. I'm surprised there hasn't been a ban on CD players given all the fumbling that can go on with the jewel case and trying to find the track you want. Six-pack CD changes are at least six times more dangerous. Newer models have multi-gigabyte hard drives capable of holding thousands of songs; try doing a song search at 100 km/h. I once drove an Audi with an awesome dashboard satellite radio system and I spent more time looking at the gorgeous screen whilst flipping through channels than I did on the car in front me. And even when we get a seamless and foolproof way of integrating our iPods into our dashboards, they're going to cause problems.

Don't get me wrong. I love all this convenient gadgetry. I just worry about The Other Guy. And it's about to get a whole lot worse. Welcome to Wi-Fi on wheels.

Chrysler was one of the first to offer the option of turning their vehicles into rolling Wi-Fi hotspots. Now GM is offering Wi-Fi for its full line of vehicles. A system made by Autonet Mobile creates a Wi-Fi cloud that extends up to 150 feet. That means not only will the kids in the back seat have access, but so will the guy two lanes over who will inevitably bob and weave so he can maintain his laptop connection. Best encrypt it fast.

WiFi will also make it possible to literally surf for tens of thousands of online radio stations and music surfaces. Want to listen to that punk rock netcaster from France while driving on the Trans-Canada between Brandon and Regina? No problem. Your Pandora or Last.fm stream? Piece of cake.

Imagine how this may impact traditional radio. I'm distracted already.

Even celebs can get spooked sometimes

PEOPLE Snakes. Guns. Violence. Some scary stuff is universal, and even celebrities aren't immune. Here's a look at the secret fears spooking Elijah Wood, Vivica A. Fox, Snoop Dogg and other stars this Halloween:
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I think it's like personal pursuits that scare me... You know, for an actor, I think I'm always scared by things that challenge me, things that are very different from things I've done before. Roles and experiences, working with people that I think are incredible, that sort of scares me." Elijah Wood, actor

"What scares me personally is mob rule. That's the one thing that really sort of scares me in life is when people get into a frightened frenzy and they sort of join up and the mob mentality takes over."
Michael Fassbender, Inglourious Basterds star

"I don't know if this is something to be scared of but one thing I find shocking is really fast, random violence. You know, like when you see things happen, you're like 'Oh my God,' you know."
Rob Zombie, musician/director

"If the snakes come in the room, Vivica is jetting onto the other side of the room, for sure... Oh, when I was a little girl I almost got bit by one. My family is from West Point, Miss., so yeah, I almost got bit by one. So they're taboo. I don't bother them. They don't bother me."
Vivica A. Fox, actor

"When the media asks me crazy questions and I don't know how to answer them, that's what I fear. But that ain't never happened, so I guess I have no fears."
Snoop Dogg, rapper/actor

Toss the frozen food

Simple recipes can change your life, explains TV chef Oliver

TINA CHADHA
Metro World News

Jamie Oliver wants you to put down the take-out menus and toss the frozen enchiladas. Tonight, you're cooking dinner.

"Learning to cook just a few simple recipes can change your life," says the charming British chef/megabrand, who is so concerned with people's poor eating habits that he's started a full on campaign against Big Macs.

"The sad truth is that if we survive on takeout food and ready meals, people are getting more unhealthy every year," says Oliver.

"Obesity, Diabetes. You name it. We are about to see the first generation of kids with shorter life spans than their parents, and it's sad."

In addition to an upcoming Canadian and U.S. TV series, his new cookbook, Jamie Oliver's Food Revolution, is stocked with easy-to-follow, 20-minute recipes and gorgeous step-by-step photography that even the most novice of chefs can follow.

"As you start cooking, you get more confident and it gets easier and more fun," assures Oliver. "Start with something really basic like pancakes. I guarantee when you've cracked pancakes — which doesn't take long — you'll be wanting to do other stuff."

But isn't take-out cheaper and easier?

"I'm always amazed when people say they don't cook because they haven't got the time or haven't got the money," says Oliver.

"I did a live show a few years ago and every night, I would telephone the local pizza place and order pizza. I would then make pizza, on stage, from scratch — I made the dough from flour and water and a bit of yeast — and by the time the pizza delivery arrived, I'd already made mine and shared it with the audience.

"And mine was tastier and the ingredients were cheaper. So it's simply about knowledge. That's all it is."

Well-known British chef Jaime Oliver is so concerned with people's poor eating habits that he's started a campaign against Big Macs.

It's V for Visitors as sci-fi remake debuts

AMBER RAY
Metro World News

Humans don't seem to have any problem with space invaders. In fact, considering the success of District 9, we seem to love the idea of a bunch of aliens hovering over our major cities.

That's exactly what the team behind V is banking on. Adapted from the popular sci-fi miniseries that originally aired on NBC in 1983, the new V is a weekly series chronicling the arrival of aliens (a.k.a. Visitors).

V premieres Tuesday night on CTV

It closely follows the plot of its predecessor: The Visitors first make contact by flying giant spacecraft over the world's metropolitan areas.

Their beautiful, poised leader, Anna (Morena Baccarin), relays their need to replenish their water supply, and in exchange they offer humans their advanced technology. And, of course, they "come in peace."

"We made sure that we honoured and respected the characters and the themes that (the original) envisioned, and introduced brand new characters and brand new themes that would make sense in a post-9/11 world," says Scott Peters, creator of the update.

The themes of fear and paranoia play out differently in 2009, and tapping into those sentiments meant reflecting on the identity of the modern "enemy."

"The original series, to me, felt very much like a military show — there was a very clear and present enemy," says executive producer Jeffrey Bell. "And post-9/11 … there is no other single threat. It's terrorists, and it's the guy across the street or the woman next door.

> "We introduced brand new characters and brand new themes that would make sense in a post-9/11 world."
> Scott Peters, V creator

"(In V) we have humans, and we have humans who are traitors, and we have Visitors who have a nefarious agenda, and we have Visitors who are heroes.

"And so not knowing who or what someone is (reflects) the paranoia that we all experience, living in a world where we wake up every day and everything is at an orange alert."

Stars expecting Visitors

Elizabeth Mitchell, who plays an FBI agent trying to learn the Visitors' true motives, remembers watching the original miniseries with her parents when she was about 13. "I liked the escape of it, and I liked the entertainment of it" she says, adding she hopes families will also sit down to watch the new incarnation of V together. "It's something that kids don't do as much anymore."

Scott Wolf plays a TV journalist chosen by the Visitors to sit down for an exclusive interview with their leader in the V pilot. Though Wolf views his character as a legitimate newsman, the prospect of career advancement quickly gets in the way of his journalistic ethics. "Part of the fun of seeing how the character develops will be that relationship between his ambition and his journalistic integrity," he says.

Metro's 7th Heaven: Metro taps what's hot right now

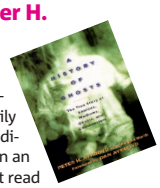
1 New Moon OST

ALBUM The Twilight franchise is finally showing some teeth, thanks to a dose of indie blood. The soundtrack features big names like Death Cab For Cutie and Thom Yorke, and more obscure ones such as Lykke Li. It's all brooding, heartbreak stuff and may well bring many vampire-resistant young ones to the New Moon pack. Standout tracks: A White Demon Love Song (The Killers) and Slow Life (Grizzly Bear).

2 The Men Who Stare At Goats

FILM Yes, George Clooney is one of the guys who can kill goats by just staring at them. In the tradition of Dr. Strangelove, the film is a send-up of all things war and military — in this case, the absurdity arises from a secret army op where psychic soldiers are trained to become "Warrior Monks." Also starring Jeff Bridges, Ewan McGregor and Kevin Spacey.

3 A History of Ghosts: Peter H. Aykroyd with Angela Narth



BOOK Now we know where Ghostbusters came from. Comedian Dan Aykroyd's dad digs deep into his family history to come up with tales of séances, mediums and ghost hunters, stories that had been an inspiration for the '80s blockbuster. A perfect read for the Halloween weekend.

4 Balloon Boy Kit

COSTUME This Halloween you can be Falcon Heene. Following the six-year-old boy's fake disappearance in a makeshift hot-air balloon, a Saskatoon company is selling the Balloon Boy Halloween Kit for just $19.99. The kit includes a 38-inch Mylar balloon, a laser-cut gondola and an instruction sheet. Customers provide their own helium, string and a cardboard box.

5 Epicurious.com

WEBSITE If you are a foodie, then this site is a must visit. Since Monday, Epicurious.com has started collecting hundreds of recipes from the world's top chefs and cookbook authors. The sneak-peek at upcoming cookbooks will also allow consumers to test-drive recipes before investing in the whole volume.

6 Monty Python: Almost The Truth

DVD The Fab Six of comedy get a documentary they deserve. Also airing as a six-part special on IFC, the film is a warts and all look at what made the always hilarious collective of John Cleese, Graham Chapman, Eric Idle, Michael Palin, Terry Jones and Terry Gilliam tick.

7 DJ Hero

GAME Do you get scratch fever every time you see a turntable? Then this one's for you. As the name suggests, the game's based on the Guitar Hero premise — follow the on-screen red-blue-and-green cues and hit the right buttons to keep the beat going.

Spooky specials: TV offers a chilling lineup

There are plenty of chills and cheese on TV leading up to Halloween on Saturday with specially-themed episodes and macabre movie marathons.

Adults looking for laughs can tune into SNL Presents the Best of Halloween's Past on Global on Saturday.

Series television gets into the swing of things as well, with CTV's Ghost Whisperer and Medium both referencing horror film classics on Friday's episodes. The mythical headless horseman from The Legend of Sleepy Hollow haunts Melinda on Ghost Whisperer while Medium's Allison has vivid nightmares that insert her into scenes from Night of the Living Dead.

Tonight, the spookfest includes CTV's The Mentalist, with a ghost and haunted mansion at the heart of a murder investigation, while Ann on CityTV's Parks and Recreation struggles to pull together a Halloween party. Movies on tap include CTV's high-definition broadcast of The Rocky Horror Picture Show; the campy classic has been digitally remastered just in time for Halloween on Saturday. The outrageous 1975 musical begins as a young couple, Brad (Barry Bostwick) and Janet (Susan Sarandon) are stranded at the home of the mad scientist Dr. Frank-N-Furter (Tim Curry).

The kitschy fun is followed on CTV by The Mothman Prophecies, in which Richard Gere plays a journalist distraught by the sudden, tragic death of his wife. Space will have the 2003 remake of Texas Chainsaw Massacre.

No school, no trust fund, Slumdog stars told

The two child stars of Slumdog Millionaire are at risk of losing their monthly stipend and their trust fund if they don't start attending school, a trustee for the fund said Thursday.

Azharuddin Mohammed Ismail, 11, is only showing up at school 37 per cent of the time and Rubina Ali, 9, has only a 27 per cent attendance rate, the trustee said.

"It's pathetic," said Noshir Dadrawala, who helps administer the Jai Ho trust established by the filmmakers to provide an education, living allowance and housing for the young stars, who grew up in Mumbai's real-life slums.

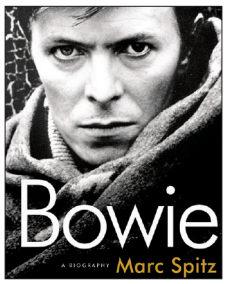
Dadrawala blamed the children's busy schedule for their chronic truancy.

"They are constantly going to Paris and Cochin and Chennai," he said. "That's fine, but go over the weekend, not at the sacrifice of school."

He said the trust decided that if the children do not get their attendance above 70 per cent they will lose their monthly stipend of about $120. If they fail to graduate, they will forfeit a lump sum payment set aside by the filmmakers to help the children, who grew up in one of Mumbai's more wretched slums, get a start in life.

The filmmakers have declined to reveal the amount in the trust for fear of exposing the families to exploitation.

Azhar's mother, Shameen Ismail, said "As long as I'm alive, I will make sure my son gets an education," she said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS



David Bowie biography illuminating

MUSIC David Bowie knows what he's singing about when he performs Changes.

After making a big splash in the early 1970s as Ziggy Stardust, he went on to become the Thin White Duke, an artsy Berlin angst rocker, the "straight" Bowie of Let's Dance and more recently the distinguished rock elder who goes to fashion events with his model wife, Iman.

The career full of characters obscures the less fantastic, but very interesting, back story of David Jones, a British teen in the 1960s who desperately wanted to make it big.

He joins some R&B bands, dabbles in acting and mime, changes his last name to Bowie and records a painful-to-listen-to single, The Laughing Gnome, that seems to channel Alvin and the Chipmunks.

Nothing in particular sticks until he records the 1969 single Space Oddity. Bowie later goes all-in with his pioneering glam character Ziggy, the one with the screwed up eyes and snow-white tan. Bowie never looks back, never stops changing.

Spitz, a music journalist, does a decent job of tracking Bowie's evolution through copious research and interviews with dozens of people who knew him.

But be warned: Spitz is not big on narrative and crafting scenes. Events are recounted through gushy quotes from chums. Worse, Spitz has the habit of interrupting Bowie's story with vignettes about his own story. Who cares?

The result: A book both interesting and irritating.

No wedding bells for Mary-Kate: Rep

RUMOUR SNUFFED It makes for a nice movie scene — boyfriend pops question over romantic dinner in Paris while ring lies buried in a box of chocolates — but don't be fooled by a supermarket tabloid story that wedding bells will soon ring for Mary-Kate Olsen, people.com reports.

Olsen, who has been dating Nate Lowman since 2008 after they met through mutual friends, is neither engaged nor preparing a prenuptial agreement, despite published reports. "Even though this information continues to be reported as 'fact,' the stories regarding Mary-Kate being engaged are not in any way accurate," Olsen's rep says. METRO WORLD NEWS

Gosselin shows regret

SALVATION Embattled reality star Jon Gosselin admits he got "carried away by the challenges of fame" and is consulting with a rabbi to "reconnect with my deeper, more spiritual, more altruistic self," usmagazine.com reports.

In a statement, the father of eight, 32, tells the website, "I am troubled to learn that the media has accepted as true the scurrilous rumour that I would appear in a reality television program with Nadya Suleman. This is utterly false.

"I do, however, accept that some of my previous actions have in some way lent credence to such outrageous stories.

"I further accept that I have allowed myself to become somewhat severed from my own moral anchor and be carried away by the challenges of fame.

"It is for this reason that I have endeavored of late to reconnect with my deeper, more spiritual, more altruistic self with regular study sessions and counseling with Rabbi Shmuley Boteach, whose morality-centered-and-values-based advice, coupled with his profound commitment to fatherhood and family, I deeply respect."

Gosselin says he has agreed to a forum at New York's West Side Synagogue this Sunday where he intends to publicly apologize in a sacred space to those whom he has hurt. METRO NEWS SERVICES

Two Taylors still mum on hookup

SEXY SECRETS Things seem to be getting serious between Taylor Swift and Taylor Lautner. The singing sensation even brought the Twilight star to dinner with her mom earlier this week. But Swift is playing coy as to their official status.

"Are we an item? I don't know. He's an amazing guy and we're really close," she tells CMT Radio.

And as for the film they were working on when they met, Swift says she's looking forward to seeing it: "I haven't seen Valentine's Day at all." METRO WORLD NEWS

Metro Recipe of the Day

Pecan-Crusted Salmon

INGREDIENTS:
4 salmon fillets (about 6 oz/170 g each)
2 cups (500 mL) milk
1 cup (250 mL) finely chopped pecans
1/2 cup (125 mL) all-purpose flour
1/4 cup (50 mL) packed brown sugar
2 tsp (10 mL) seasoned salt
2 tsp (10 mL) pepper
3 tbsp (45 mL) canola oil

METHOD:
1. Place salmon fillets in large resealable plastic bag; add milk. Seal bag and turn to coat. Let stand 10 minutes; drain.
2. Meanwhile, in shallow bowl, combine pecans, flour, brown sugar, seasoned salt and pepper. Coat fillets with pecan mixture, gently pressing into fish.
3. In large skillet, brown salmon in oil over medium-high heat. Transfer to 15-in. x 10-in. x 1-in. (38 cm x 25 cm x 2.5 cm) baking pan coated with nonstick cooking spray. Bake at 400°F (200°C) 8-10 minutes or until fish flakes easily with fork.

ARIES ♈
MARCH 21-APRIL 20
You tend to rush into situations without thought for the consequences, but over the next few days you'll be a lot more cautious.

TAURUS ♉
APRIL 21-MAY 21
Let down your hair and have fun today. You have been too caught up in your everyday schedule, and other people's problems.

GEMINI ♊
MAY 22-JUNE 21
As Saturn moves away from the domestic area of your chart you will find it easier to get along with others.

CANCER ♋
JUNE 22-JULY 22
Speak your mind by all means but don't go to extremes and if you must be controversial at least wait until next Monday's full moon has come and gone.

LEO ♌
JULY 23-AUG 23
Others will lose out over the next few days while you gain in power and prestige. Leos are ambitious.

VIRGO ♍
AUG 24-SEPT 22
You are as entitled to have fun as anyone else and from the look of your chart you will be having as much fun as everyone else put together.

LIBRA ♎
SEPT 23-OCT 23
Saturn is moving into your birth sign and for the next couple of years you will be challenged in all sorts of ways.

SCORPIO ♏
OCT 24-NOV 22
Someone is trying to lull you into a false sense of security so they can profit from your mistakes, so be on your guard.

SAGITTARIUS ♐
NOV 23-DEC 21
You won't lack for confidence today but watch out you don't overdo it and scare away someone who has a lot to offer.

CAPRICORN ♑
DEC 22-JAN 20
As Saturn, planet of limitation, enters the career area of your chart it is likely that people of authority will make things tough for you.

AQUARIUS ♒
JAN 21-FEB 18
Throw caution to the wind and do something that will get you noticed. Relationships of all kinds will go well today and with Mars motivating you.

PISCES ♓
FEB 19-MARCH 20
Too often in the past you have changed your plans to make others happy, but now others will have to adapt to fit in with your needs and desires.

This day in history

1905: Czar Nicholas II of Russia grants Russia's first constitution, creating a legislative assembly.
1918: The Ottoman Empire signs an armistice with the Allies, ending the First World War in the Middle East.
1938: Orson Welles broadcasts his radio play of H. G. Wells' The War of the Worlds, causing anxiety in some of the audience in the United States.
1961: Because of "violations of Lenin's precepts", it is decreed that Joseph Stalin's body be removed from its place of honour inside Lenin's tomb and buried near the Kremlin wall with a plain granite marker instead.
